SEE YOU IN SEPTEMBER!

Response to the Road to 2000: An Autumn Adventure, Sept. 25-27, 1994, Burlington, Vt., has been most encouraging.

The purpose of the Road to 2000 is to provide the Voting Members with an opportunity to host monument dealers and others interested in viewing the many and various products of the finest Vermont granite manufacturers.

The 1994 invitation list includes people from the kitchen and bath industry, contractors, landscape architects, builders, the sign industry, and, of course, monument dealers.

The decision to move the site of the largest planned exhibit of Barre products ever from the Granite Center of the World to Vermont's largest city, was prompted by several key factors, such as: proximity of air transportation, a much larger and more modern exhibit facility, and a conference center that would accommodate a larger group. Since none of these conference facilities is currently available in the Barre area, the decision to locate in Burlington was compelling and mandatory.

The finest speakers in the country related to granite have already committed to speak and will have easy access to the Sheraton-Burlington Conference Center, less than a mile from Burlington International Airport.

The Road to 2000 was last held in Barre in 1992 and drew an audience of more than 200, mainly monument dealers, from 25 states. While the primary product focus is expected to be memorials, there will also be a greater emphasis on the growing demand for other products for the home and garden that have attracted the interest of home improvement and architectural professionals.

Besides the lure of viewing the finest granite products manufactured in the U.S., an added draw to this year's Road to 2000 will be its timing during the fall foliage extravaganza, which draws thousands of "leaf-peepers" to the Green Mountain State. In fact, in 1993, one foliage weekend drew so many visitors to the Burlington area, that those hapless souls without lodging had to drive an hour and 45 minutes to find a place to sleep. BARRÉ OPERA HOUSE - A GRANITE MASTERPIECE

The new Barre Opera House is a tribute to the generosity and leadership of the granite industry. While the presence of famous Barre Gray granite is evident, less noticeable, but of equal significance, was the leadership from the local granite industry who made it all happen. One would think that with a workload that begins at 7 a.m., voluntary leadership would have to be recruited elsewhere for a project as large as this 650-seat facility. Not so for Bob Pope of Anderson-Friberg, who served as campaign chair, chief fund raiser and construction liaison for the Opera House rebuilding effort. Total fund-raising results for the Opera House renovation was $815,000. Of that amount, granite industry suppliers contributed $34,000, and granite manufacturers $68,000, in supplies and product. In addition, corporate contributions from BGA Supporting Members reached nearly $100,000.

The Barre Opera House today stands as a granite masterpiece thanks to maestro Bob Pope, and the generous support of many in the BGA community.

ABOUT OUR COVER

Experience The Event Of The Season... September 25-27, 1994, Burlington, Vermont

The vibrant reds, oranges and yellows of a Vermont fall must be seen to be believed. And this year, the Barre Granite Association is offering you and your family the chance to combine business with a leaf-peeper’s vacation by attending “The Road To 2000: An Autumn Adventure!,” the much-anticipated sequel to our highly successful monument display and workshop series held in Barre in 1992.

The Barre Granite Association’s 1994 event is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 25 through Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1994, at the Sheraton Burlington Hotel & Conference Center — during peak foliage season.

PLEASE NOTE: The BGA has reserved a block of 200 rooms, which are available on a first-come, first-served basis, and only to “The Road To 2000: An Autumn Adventure!” registrants. A word to the wise: Once these rooms have been filled, and they will rapidly, it will be impossible for you to find lodging anywhere in the state during the foliage season. Seasoned leaf-peepers make their hotel reservations a full year in advance. We urge you to make your travel plans now and avoid disappointment.

“The Road To 2000: An Autumn Adventure!” brings together for the first time individuals from the monument industry and other users of granite, such as owners of kitchen and bath centers, sign shops and garden centers. The three-day event will include useful workshops, a huge display of granite memorials and other granite products, spouses programs and tours — including one to Ben & Jerry’s Ice Cream Factory — and more.

Please, complete and return the coupon on the reverse side at once. We will rush you a full registration packet, complete with registration fees and hotel information.

Barre Opera House

A Command Performance By Barre Granite Industry Restores 107-Year-Old Landmark To Its Former Glory

It was the burgeoning granite industry that transformed Barre from a typical sleepy New England town into a vibrant multi-ethnic community during the late 1800s, a community whose artistic needs would lead to the building of its own opera house in 1886.

Recently, the Barre granite industry was involved in another transformation project: doing its share to help renovate and upgrade its ailing opera house.

After decades of neglect during which the Barre Opera House was shut down, stripped of its interior fixtures, seats and staircase, and reduced to warehouse status, the Barre Opera House reopened this past September after a $900,000 renovation and handicap accessibility project.

Interior improvements include a new elevator with stops at the new theater-level lobby (featuring Bethel White granite tiles), the stage and new dressing rooms; a new balcony, which expands seating to 650; and handicap-accessible rest rooms at lobby, mezzanine and balcony levels (featuring Dakota Mahogany granite tiles).

The most noticeable aspect of the renovation is the new Barre Gray granite addition to the rear of the building. All the granite, its processing and the materials used in the processing for this facade were donated by members of the Barre granite industry, many of whom are members of the Barre Granite Association: The Rock of Ages Corporation donated 800 cubic feet of Barre Gray granite. Colombo Granite Company, North Barre Granite Company, Consolidated Memorials, M & W Polishing and Associated Memorial Products sawed those blocks into slabs, which were then thermalled and polished by Anderson-Friberg Company. Granite Importers, Granite Industries of Vermont, Rouleau Granite Company and other Barre manufacturers dimensioned those slabs into the 250 individual pieces that were hung on the facade’s stainless-steel grid.

Funding for the grid and the installation of the granite, and donations of materials used in fabricating the granite, came from suppliers to the industry, including BGA members Budiam America Diamond Tools, Inc., Dessureau Machines, Inc., Berg, Carmolli & Kent, Inc., Granite Savings Bank & Trust Company, Green Mountain Power Corporation, Vermont National Bank and Trow & Holden Company.

The following two pages chronicle this renovation project. Follow the time capsule beginning on this page for highlights of the 107-year-old history of the Barre Opera House.

• 1886: Original Opera House built.  • 1892: Electric lights installed.  • 1898: Opera House destroyed by fire on Jan. 18.  • 1899: New Opera House and City Hall complex built at a cost of $64,000, and designed by renowned Massachusetts architect George G. Adams, the Opera House seats 1,000 and is considered the finest theater in Vermont. Opening presentation is “Two Little Vagrants,” staged in August. On Oct. 30, famed David Belasco
Foundation, Inc., forms. • 1976: $600,000 fund-raising campaign to restore Opera House ends in disaster in October. • 1979: Vermont Center for the Performing Arts, Inc., begins another effort to renovate Opera House. • 1982: Barre Players reopen Opera House with “Sweet Charity.” • 1984: 434 plush seats added, ventilation and heating system installed. • 1986: Velour curtains installed. • 1991: National Life of Vermont donates $200,000 to help make Opera House handicap accessible. • 1992: City of Barre approves $250,000 bond for Opera House and City Hall; final $900,000 accessibility and improvement project begins, which includes new Barre Gray granite facade, staircases, rest rooms, fire and building code improvements and the reopening of the balcony. • 1993: Renovation completed! Barre Opera House grand opening on Sept. 9.
Vermont Lieutenant Governor Barbara Snelling addressed the members of the Barre Granite Association on Nov. 18, at the Barre Elks Club. Her presentation was the second in a series of BGA Issues Forums whereby BGA members meet and share ideas with leading political and business people from within the State.

Lt. Governor Snelling spoke at length on the problems of the State's development permit process, an area of particular interest to owners of granite manufacturing plants who are burdened with the permitting process and other regulatory compliance concerns.

Her request to speak to the BGA membership coincided with the Association's aim of letting elected officials know about the cost of State and federal regulations on the competitiveness of the Barre granite industry, which, with annual sales in excess of $100 million and more than 1,000 people employed directly, ranks as the State's seventh largest industry.

National Cemetery System Director Visits Barre; Honored At Reception

Michael Bouchard, BGA president (left), presented Jerry Bowen, new director of the National Cemetery System for the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, with a clock made from Barre Granite at a BGA reception held during Bowen's Oct. 21-22 visit to Barre to tour granite manufacturing plants and granite quarries.

Bowen, a presidential appointee, told BGA granite manufacturers that he is considering a policy change that would allow for the reintroduction of upright granite memorials into some of the 114 national cemeteries his office oversees. He was careful to note, however, that such a policy change would require congressional approval.

He also said that a policy change for the national cemetery network would not necessarily affect private cemeteries, which according to estimates from the Department of Veterans Affairs, account for about 75 percent of the 310,000 uprights and markers the government supplies veterans and their relatives each year. About 25 percent of government-supplied uprights and markers are placed in national cemeteries.
COUTURE GRANITE COMPANY’S RESTORATIVE POWERS — When a logging truck carrying an excavator didn’t quite clear the entrance to Oakdale Cemetery in Sanford, Maine, last May the results were captured in the inset at left. Luckily, damage to the 11-piece, 105,000-pound, all-steelled Barre Gray granite Clark Memorial was limited to minor nicks and chips. Forrest Mansur of Heritage Memorials of Sanford, Maine, the company who erected the monument in 1966, had the damaged pieces trucked to Couture Granite Company in Barre for repair. There the pieces were laid out in Couture’s yard — the largest piece at 22 feet long was too large to work on in the plant — where owner Roger Couture and Finisher Clarence “Mickey” Partlow (inset, right) worked their magic by erasing the nicks and chips by adding rounds, a wash here and there, and a couple of new checks so that the repaired piece (above) is virtually indistinguishable from the original.

BGA Monument Cleaning Grant Program Completes Fourth Year

For the past four years, the Barre Granite Association has presented the Barre City Cemetery Commission with an annual grant to clean Barre Gray granite monuments in Hope Cemetery.

And with this year’s $5,000 grant, the total number of upright monuments cleaned during those four years has reached 345, while the total number of markers — both raised and flush — is nearly 500!

The cleaning of Barre Gray granite monuments is accomplished by applying a mild detergent solution under high pressure. Once cleaned, these monuments are as clean as the day they were set and will retain their luster for years, which is part of Barre Gray granite’s inherent quality.

Some of the 124 uprights recently cleaned at world famous Hope Cemetery are more than 75 years old.

IMPROVING YOUR COLLECTION TECHNIQUES — Dun & Bradstreet Instructor Charles J. Becker (right) shows BGA members how to collect more money, keep good customers, get commitment from debtors to make payments, get payment faster, reduce bad debts, and overcome debtor excuses instantly, during this daylong BGA Member Services Seminar held at the BGA’s office in October. The seminar was tailored specifically for granite industry collections by Mr. Becker who has presented programs for the American Management Association, Syracuse University, National Association of Credit Managers and Dun & Bradstreet.

Exploring New Dimensions: Geology of Barre Granite

A group of 24 granite enthusiasts learned about the geological history of the Barre region, including the formation and composition of Barre’s granite plutons, and the granite manufacturing process during a fall field trip held jointly by the University of Vermont and the Barre Granite Association. The group, led by Jeff Howe, curator of the University of Vermont’s Perkins Museum of Geology and an authority on Barre Granite, visited several sites in and around Barre, including the Rock of Ages Corporation’s Wetmore-Morse Quarry, then stopped at the BGA’s 51 Church Street office for coffee and doughnuts and to watch a video on quarrying and manufacturing. The day concluded with a tour of the Colombo Granite Company manufacturing plant in Barre.

Jeff Howe points to a huge xenolith in a granite deposit that is more than 350 years old.

Company President Bob Colombo conducts a tour of his plant.

Established in 1992, the BGA is comprised of Barre-area granite quarriers and manufacturers of memorials and other granite products, and other businesses that provide products and services related to the granite industry. The BGA provides its members with collective bargaining and industrial relations, industry research, educational programs, public relations, marketing, and government and regulatory representation. With more than 1,000 people employed directly and sales of nearly $100 million annually, the granite industry is Vermont’s seventh-largest industry.

Laux, CCE, presents incoming ACA president Arlie Davenport, CCE, with the gavel of presidency during the American Cemetery Association’s annual convention, which was attended by cemeterians from across North America. The convention also featured an industry trade show where exhibitors to the death-care industry displayed their products and services. Barre was represented by BGA Executive Vice President Lewis A. Shattuck.
Kentucky Association of Monument Dealers
October 14-16, 1993, Louisville, Kentucky

(From left) KAMD President Andrew Futrell of Woodson & Kratch Memorials, Louisville, Ky., and MBNA President David Bott, CM, of Mark H. Bott Company, Ogden, Utah, drop by the BGA’s table-top exhibit during the KAMD Convention, which attracted representatives from 12 Kentucky monument retail firms and 19 suppliers. BGA Manager of Public Relations Patrick T. Mullikin spoke to the group about the BGA’s upcoming Road To 2000: An Autumn Adventure.

Monument Builders of Nebraska
September 19-21, 1993, Omaha, Nebraska

Nebraska played host to the joint conference of the Monument Builders of Iowa, Northwest Monument Builders (Minnesota, North and South Dakota) and Nebraska Monument Builders. Representatives from 40 monument retail firms from the four states attended the convention, which featured the table-top exhibits of 20 suppliers and reports from the three granite-producing regions. Representing Barre were Norm Campo of Rock of Ages Corporation, Mike Karmody of Lawson Granite Company and BGA Manager of Public Relations Patrick T. Mullikin.
Representatives from 13 monument retail firms from across Wisconsin attended their State's annual convention and heard MBNA President Jeff Anderson, CM, present "Design By Success," the MBNA's Next-Step Seminar sponsored by the Barre Granite Association. The convention also featured table-top displays and a report by BGA Executive Vice President Lewis A. Shattuck who spoke on activities in Barre. Also representing Barre at the convention was Brent Buttura (center, inset) of Buttura & Sons, Inc.
