The Elia Corti monument, one of the most popular and finely sculpted monuments in Barre, is located in Hope Cemetery.

SALES SEMINAR IS MAJOR SUCCESS

Over 100 retail monument dealers, some from as far away as California, Texas and Colorado, came to Vermont the week of August 17 to participate in one of the most comprehensive industry sales seminars to be held in recent years.

The event was the Barre Granite Association's Sales Seminar 1986, which was held at the luxurious Stoweflake resort in Stowe, Vermont. While some time was set aside to enjoy the splendor of the Green Mountain State, the primary focus of the seminar was how to increase the sales of granite memorials.

The workshops covered such topics as Selling by Understanding Your Customer's Behavior, Selling in Your Place of Business and Selling in the Customer's Home, Preneed Sales, Cremation: A Preparation for Memorialization, and Training Sales Personnel.

The faculty that led the seminars included Arthur M. Balfe, CLU, who serves as Superintendent of Agencies with the National Life Insurance Company; Tom Leary, Manager, Planning and Development with the BGA; Fred Donatelli, of Fred Donatelli Cemetery Memorials in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Gary D. Koontz, of the Everett Granite and Marble Works, Inc. of Everett, Pennsylvania; Fred Latzke, CM of the Milwaukee Memorial Company, Inc., Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Robert "Rob" Lee, of the Cooperstown Monument Company in Cooperstown, New York; and Michael J. Johns, of the Johns-Carabelli Company in Cleveland, Ohio.

In addition to the seminars, ample time was set aside for the dealers to tour Barre's world famous granite quarries, visit Hope Cemetery and tour plant facilities of members of the Barre Granite Association.

Visiting retail monument dealers were captivated by the quarrying operations at the Rock of Ages Quarry in Barre. Here the visitors watch the quarrying operations while on a train tour of the facility.

SHUTTLE ASTRONAUTS REMEMBERED

A granite monument manufactured and donated by the Desilets Granite Company of Montpelier, is the centerpiece of the new Challenger Memorial Park in Vermont's Capital City.

Recently, local school children, city officials and two NASA Space Ambassadors participated in ceremonies dedicating the park to the memory of the seven crew members of the Challenger Space Shuttle who were killed less than two minutes into their launch on January 28, 1986.

The small park is located on land owned by the National Life Insurance Company and is bordered by Memorial Avenue and National Life Drive in Montpelier.

Vic Roselli, President of Desilets Granite; his wife Evelyn; and son Danny attended the ceremonies.

Mr. Roselli praised his son Danny who helped bring the project to fruition.

"Danny deserves all the credit on this. He designed the monument and got everything done," Vic said.

The monument is made of Barre Gray granite and South American Black granite. The granite portion measures 2-0 x 0-4 x 4-0 and is all steeled with sandblast lettering. The black portion is polished and measures 1-2 x 0-10 x 3-6.

The words "In Memory of the Challenger Seven" and the date January 28, 1986, are inscribed on the monument as well as the names of the seven shuttle astronauts.

NASA SPACE AMBASSADORS – Gail Breslaur and Michael Metcalfe from the Teachers in Space Program helped dedicate the new park. Ms. Breslaur told the audience that the spirit of the Challenger crew lives on the each individual should reach for new horizons, whatever their chosen endeavor.

CHOOSING YOUR FAMILY MEMORIAL

A letter from a husband to his wife

STRICTLY ELEMENTARY

How do you incorporate a study of the granite industry into every educational discipline faced by students in kindergarten through grade 4?

This was the challenge faced by teachers and 120 students from Barre's Ward Five School when they decided to spend an entire year learning about granite.

"We included granite into every subject area except gym," said Pam Bert, a tutoring aide, who helped coordinate the project.

Students took numerous field trips, wrote songs about granite, did a painting of a granite quarry, and even put together a trivia game with granite as the theme.

Bert said the thrust of the project was to totally immerse Barre students in the knowledge of the granite industry.

"Granite is the lifeblood of the community and a lot of students knew very little about it. Nothing has ever been done of this scale before," Bert said.

The year-long project covered virtually every aspect of the granite industry. Students studied about the complete process of granite manufacture—from the quarrying of the stone to the art and craftsmanship involved in a finished monument.

(The cover used on the summer issue of Barre Life was a photograph taken during the students' visit to Hope Cemetery.)

With hammer and chisel in hand, students learn one of the rudimentary skills of the granite craft.

Students view the results of their year-long study of the granite industry.

Memorial Designs

The Anastasi monument, in Impala black granite, was manufactured by Beck & Beck, Inc., for Bristol Memorial Works in Bristol, Connecticut. The tablet is all polished and measures 3-8 x 0-8 x 4-10. The eagle and clouds were etched while the name panel and the praying hands with rosettes and leaves were sandblast carved.

This beautiful Marinelli family monument was manufactured by ADAMS GRANITE COMPANY for J.N. Chill & Sons of New Castle, Pennsylvania. Produced in Select Barre Light granite, this memorial features the sandblast shaped carving of eight Adamscraft roses on a tablet measuring 10-0 x 1-0 x 3-0. Two vases, one foot two inches in diameter and one foot four inches tall stand at each of the 13-foot, four inch base.

This beautiful Canadian Pink memorial was manufactured by NORTH BARRE GRANITE COMPANY for V. Kulinski Memorials of Manville, New Jersey. The Solodovnykovy family memorial features Ukranian lettering and a polished finish on five sides. This monument measures 7-0 x 0-10 x 5-9.

This handsome memorial was created by ANDERSON-FRIBERG COMPANY from Barre granite. This steeled finished memorial measures 4-6 x 0-10 x 2-8 and rests on a base 5-6 x 1-4 x 0-10.

This beautiful Barre granite family memorial was made by LaCross Memorials for Louis La Croix, retired President of the BGA-member firm, and his wife, Vera, now deceased. The ledgers measure 2-10 x 8-6 x 0-10. The tablet is 8-6 x 0-10 x 3-6. La Croix is also a former President of the Barre Granite Association.

The Mastromatteo family monument was manufactured by ADAMS GRANITE COMPANY for Empire Granite Company of Worcester, Massachusetts. This Barre granite monument, 3-6 x 0-8 x 3-6, features a special four-inch relief, hand carved rose.

The Colombo Granite Company manufactured this India Red monument for the DePaola Monument Company of Newark, New Jersey. The memorial is in the Fairview Cemetery in Westfield, New Jersey.

This impressive monument was designed and manufactured by the Rouleau Granite Company. Made of Barre medium gray granite, the soccer ball measures 2'6" in diameter. The distinctive pattern on the soccer ball was achieved by blueing during the sandblast process. The entire monument stands 5'8" high.

This deep carved Barre gray memorial is located in Hope Cemetery and was manufactured by the Chioldi Granite Corporation.

Hope Cemetery is the home of some of the most beautiful monuments created by the member firms of the Barre Granite Association. Here, Mother Nature adds her touch to accentuate the scene.

The Stone Whistle

Over a half million people have seen the Stone Whistle, and demand for the highly acclaimed film about the Barre granite industry remains high throughout the United States and Canada.

Norman James, Executive Vice President of the Barre Granite Association, attributes the popularity of the film to its effectiveness as a sales tool for retail monument dealers and the appeal of the film to the consumer.

Starring John Forsythe, of the television program Dynasty, the color film runs 30-minutes. The movie covers all aspects of the granite industry and also touches on the religious significance of monuments, how the memorials are personalized and the infinite care and detail required to produce beautiful granite monuments made by members of the Barre Granite Association.

The film is available exclusively through retail monument dealers. James said it was decided to restrict distribution of the Stone Whistle through retail monument dealers to assist them in sales efforts.

HOW TO ORDER THE STONE WHISTLE

At least three weeks or more before the showdate, you should mail your order to:

Barre Granite Association
P.O. Box 481

ROCK OF AGES AT INDUSTRIAL SHOW

Technical director of the Industrial Products Division with the Rock of Ages Corporation, James Soutar discusses the various industrial applications of granite with Vermont Secretary of Development and Community Affairs James A. Guest. Rock of Ages was one of the hundreds of exhibitors in a major industrial trade show held recently in Burlington, Vermont.

CORRECTIONS

In the last issue of Barre Life, we incorrectly identified Vince Lentini of Beck & Beck as Vince Illuzi. Two captions were also misplaced misidentifying Stanislaw Lutostanski as Alcide Fantoni, and Mr. Fantoni as Mr. Lutostanski. A typo in our story on cremation resulted in the reporting of the rate of cremation in excess of 31 percent. The correct figure is 13 percent. We regret the errors.

Major office renovations and plant improvements have been made at the Lawson Granite Company.

Mark Gheradi, Vice President and Secretary of the company, says the changes have greatly improved the work environment as well as the capacity of the plant to improve production.

Barre Granite Association Hosts New England Cemeterians

Unusually cool summer weather did nothing to detract from the success of a recent visit to Barre by nearly 50 cemetarians from across New England.

The cemetarians visited the Granite Center of the world as part of their New England Cemetery Convention which was held in Vermont this year.

The Barre Granite Association hosted the cemetarians visit to Barre which included a tour of the quarries, the Rock of Ages Craftsman Center and Hope Cemetery.

As the cemetarians toured the Rock of Ages plant, many favorable comments were overheard.

"It really is amazing what they can do with a block of granite," said one visitor. "I'm glad I came, now I understand the amount of work and the skill required to produce a monument," said another.

At Hope Cemetery, the cemetarians saw the success of the planning and landscaping techniques of Donald G. Ward, nationally known landscape architect. The cemetarians were also impressed with the many famous monuments in Hope Cemetery.

The visit was capped off with a luncheon hosted by the BGA.

The tour was so successful that several other cemetarians visited Barre on their own during the convention.

Members of the New England Cemetery Association visited Barre recently. The cemeterians toured the Rock of Ages quarry and Hope Cemetery.

Robert Campo, Jr., a sales manager for Rock of Ages Corporation, shows visiting cemeterians the new cremation vault designed by the company.

"For those who are missing, we will not give up hope of bringing you home. And to the families of those who did not survive, whether they died on foreign soil or here at home, we offer our respect and prayers that this sort of tragedy does not come again to our homeland.

"We etch these names in granite to stand against time so we and our children can learn and remember.

"In the shadow of liberty there are many benefits and freedoms for us all, but at a cost of great personal tragedy."
